FORTY-NINTH CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 1 .- The chair laid b w ashington, June 1.—The chair laid before the senate several messages from the president vetoing private pension bills which have been already published.

Mr. Dawes presented a petition from the city council of Gloucester, Mass., praying for retalistion on the Canadian government for the seizure of American fishing vessels.
In presenting the petition Mr. Dawes said there seemed to be a disposition on the part there seemed to be a disposition on the par of the Canadian government to harrass and embarras citizens of the United States en-gaged in what could not but be considered lawful commerce. It seemed to lawful commerce. It seemed to many, Mr.
Dawes said, that there was some bitterness on the part of those clothed with the duty of protecting our commerce. He wanted some assurance from the committee on for-eign relations that measures would be taken to protect our citizens.

Mr. Edmunds said the committee on for eign relations had no power to protect American commerce or American citizens; that belonged to the executive department of the government, and was part of its duty under the laws of the United States and the

In the absence of definite information we must presume that the executive department of the government was doing everything it could to protect citizens of the United States whose vessels had been seized or unkindly dealt with by the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Edmunds said the president, if he signed the recent act of congress on this subject, now had power to retaliate for any injustice done our vessels in Canada or elseere. If that act had become a law and f our British brethern were stirred up the in order to force us into conver for free fishery or anything else, it was now in the power of the president to take such measures as would tend to correct the abuse. So far as the committee on foreign relations is concerned, however, the subject is too immature to enable Mr. Edmunds to make or what ought to be done about it. Mr. Dawes remarked that it could no have escaped the observation of the com mittee that armed cruisers of the Canadian government were about the waters on the borders of the three-mile limit, in search of American vessels in order that they might, the United States in these waters to protect our fishermen in the exercise of lawful commerce, led Mr. Dawes to inquire whether that absence was from any lack of proper power in the premises. He was aware of the necessity of proceeding with caution. There were those engaged in the business affected, however, who did not appreciate the necessity of delay, but who, if they could have the assurance of so high an authority as that of the committee on foreign relations that no delay arose from indifference, he was quite satisfied they would have greater confidence in their cause and an ultimate protection by the government.

In reply Mr. Edmunds said that no legislation was necessary unless it might by legislation was necessary unless it might by a separation of money and hardly that to anable the president of the United States, who is commander-in-chief of our armies to—153 to 122.

mental purpose of the Ottawa government was, would be a benefit to our people. No question had been before the state department for some time that was more grave and of more moment than this question. Congress had already acted and put into the hands of the president the power of fit and judicious retalistion, which must be exercised as an administrative, and not as a legislative power. Mr. Hale was bound to say that the people he represented and the people of the United States generally were looking with anxiety to see the administration come up to what had been the intention of congress.

On the suggestion of Mr. Dolph, who desires to be absent for a few days, the Northern Pacific forfeiture bill was postponed till Monday next.

The bill providing for the taxation of railroad grant lands was taken up. Mr. Plumb, while sympathizing with the purpose of Mr. Hoar's amendment limiting purchases under the act to 640 acres, feared it would embarrass the operation of the bill, and auggested that Mr. Hear withdraw his amendment and embody it in a separate bill, with properly detailed provisions in which form Mr. Plumb would support it. He (Plumb) did not believe that any man ought to own any more land than be could reasonably use, and he would pledge himself to vote for any bill that would make a reasonable limitation on land.

Mr. Hoar, not wishing to embarrass the bill, withdrew his amendment.

After considerable debate the bill was passed.

Mr. Van Wyck then called up the house bill.

The motion was agreed to and the house bill.

In the disagreeing vote of the two houses thus brought about the senate, on motion of Mr. Van Wyck, ordered a committee of conference. This has the effect of avoiding the delay which would result from the consideration from the senate bill as an original sideration from the senate bill as an original proposition in the house of representatives and puts it at once in the bands of a con-

Mr. Dawes, from the committee on Indian

He characterized the acts complained of as disgraceful to any community in which they occurred, and disgraceful to any government that would not punish the guilty and repair the damage done. This he repeated and would not qualify.

Mr. Call regarded the outrages complained of as constituting a barbarism so foul that language failed to adequately describe it. He supported the bill.

The matter then went over till to-morrow. Mr. Edmunds had the clerk read a letter received by him (Edmunds) from the secretary of the interior. In this letter Mr. Lamar acknowledges the receipt of a letter from Mr. Edmunds inquiring as to the number of pension appeals now before the secretary of interior and when the appeal in the case of Adrian T. Woodward, late surgeon in the 14th Vermont volunteers, would be reached in its order. Mr. Lamar replies that during the year 1885 there were 2,661 appeals filed, of which about six hundred have been decided and that the cases appealed in March, 1886, were now being considered. The appeal in the Woodward case, he says, was filed on May 6, 1885; that there were still about four hundred cases ahead of his and it would not be reached in its order for about three months yet. During this year the number of appeals filed was

In a special car attached to the train were John W. Davis, president Garrett's assistant, and Charles Selden, superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company. The two carriages sent from Washington were in waiting when the party arrived and a drizzling rain was falling as the president and Mrs. Cleveland left their car. The drive to the cottage occupied but a few minutes and until the afternoon there was no sign of either bride or groom, no cooking utensils in the house, all meals being prepared at the hotel near by. When the party entered the house a cheerful fre was blazing on the hearth, and made a pleasant contrast to the chilly atmosphere without. The house is guarded by detectives, who are required to know nothing, and the admonition is hardly necessary, as not a word will they utter on any subject.

who is commander-in-chief of our armies and navies, to send out any vessel of the United States, if we happen to have one, that could swim. He (Edmunds) believed we had one that could swim; one that had been trying for several months to swim, and had succeeded every time in swimming, but had not yet, he believed, succeeded in getting into the revice of the United States. Mr. Edmunds presumed it would not be considered discourtesy to express the bope that a ship of the United States would in due time appear in the northern seas, set a proper distance from the shores of her majesty's dominion to give some little encouragement to American citizens engaged in lawful pursuits.

Mr. Hale stated the circumstances that gave rise to the dispatch received from Eastport, Maine, relating to orders said to have been issued by the Canadian authorities affecting the berring fisheries, of the Canadian people themselves and their business in herring with the people of Maine. This matter appeared to Mr. Hale to be the
